

Abstract

A cooking utensil includes a base wall, an upstanding peripheral wall structure integral with the base wall and a peripheral flange extending laterally outwardly from the peripheral wall structure with indicia thereon including plural equidistantly spaced first indicia respectively alternating with plural, equidistantly spaced second indicia, so that each first and second indicium is disposed directly opposite a like indicium. Plural, evenly-spaced additional indicia may be disposed on an upper surface of the base wall.